FotoFocus: 2 events feature Enquirer photos | Cincinnati.com ...

The Enquirer photography staff has searched through its archives to put on two shows that are part of FOTOFOCUS.

?The Good River: What Divides and Connects Us? exhibits 26 photos, showing the Ohio River in all of its forms ? from its beauty to its rage. The earliest photo dates back to 1904. Oct. 1-Nov. 3 at the Eva G. Farris Gallery at Thomas More College. A lecture featuring Enquirer columnist and resident Ohio River historian Cliff Radel is Saturday, Oct. 5, 4-5 p.m., with a special gallery opening reception following, 5-8 p.m. Enquirer photojournalists lecture Oct. 24, 3:30-5 p.m. Free and open to the public.

?Freedom of the Press: I am a Witness,? at the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center, features 63 images showing the emotion, beauty, and history of the region by past and present Enquirer photographers. Witnesses to some of the most tragic and the most sublime moments, photojournalists share some of their most memorable images, highlighting the power of the First Amendment. Several photos shown have never before been published. Oct. 1-Jan. 2 at the Freedom Center. Opening reception Oct. 12, 6-9 p.m.
